PREFACE

Auburn Theological Seminary was founded by the Synod of Geneva, August 6th, 1818. It was opened for students, October 15, 1821, and the first class was graduated in August, 1824. With the exception of 1855, a class has graduated each year since. This General Biographical Catalogue of the Centennial year, 1918, contains the record of ninety-five classes, for even 1855 is represented by men who are counted as belonging to this class. The aim has been to include every student who has here studied, and, so far as possible, give a brief biography and a record of his services.

In 1831 and '36, the Seminary issued a "General Catalogue," and in '39, '42, '45, '50, '55, '59 and '61, a "Triennial Catalogue." In each case except that of '61, which appeared separately, these "Triennials" were bound up with the annual Catalogue.

In 1872, an "Historical Catalogue" of 62 pages, prepared by Dr. S. M. Hopkins, was published. It was the original intention to have this ready for the Semi-Centennial, which was celebrated in 1870, but it was necessarily delayed. In it the students were arranged according to the year they entered the Seminary, and very brief biographical notices were given.

In 1883, a "General Catalogue" was published, edited by Dr. W. J. Beecher. Upon its preparation Dr. Beecher bestowed a great amount of labor, and the editors of the present General Catalogue, the next in order of time, are greatly indebted to him. They have taken his Catalogue as the basis for this one, and they could not have made its earlier pages so full and accurate as they are without its aid. The general arrangement of that Catalogue is familiar to the alumni. Dr. Beecher labored under many serious disadvantages, chiefly due to the fact that few Colleges or Seminaries had then General Catalogues, and even those in print were of comparatively little use. On the other hand, he personally knew and corresponded with representatives of every class that had studied in the Seminary, and from them collected data which could not now be duplicated. But while availing ourselves of the results of his labor, it is within the facts to say, that we have corrected hundreds of mistakes discovered in all the preceding Catalogues, and, of course, have added much new material.

The following rules have guided the present editors in their task: Where men studied with more than one class they are counted with the last class with which they studied. A man who appears as a senior without any qualification in the annual Catalogue is counted as a graduate. Where the length of a student's stay in the Seminary is not given, it will be understood that he was here for three years. Post-graduates, who are Auburn men, are mentioned with the class with which they graduated, other post-graduates under the year in which they studied. Each class is arranged under two alphabetical lists; the first containing the names of all graduates, the second the names of non-graduates. Where necessary a third list of the names of post-graduates from other Seminaries is given. A star has been prefixed to the names of those not now living. Two items are given not found in most other General Catalogues; the date and place of marriage and the name of wife; and the publications of the alumnus.

A few typographical errors in names in the text are corrected in the index, so that where a difference appears the index gives the name correctly.

In spite of all the care exercised mistakes and omissions will undoubtedly be found in this Catalogue. Only those who have done similar work can fully appreciate the impossibility of eliminating all of them, nor the vast amount of labor represented by such a Catalogue. The editors will be thankful to have their attention called to any errors which others may discover.

The committee desire to make grateful acknowledgement of the more important sources of information from which they have received much help. The main source has been the students themselves who have filled the blanks sent out for this purpose, and deficiencies in the record are largely due to the neglect of some of them. Since 1882, about 70 records are defective, and, in almost every instance, the reason for it is the failure of the man to reply to repeated inquiries. Among the other sources these are mentioned: the General Catalogues of other Seminaries, specially those of Andover, Princeton, Western, Lane and Union; the General Catalogues of Colleges and Universities; the Librarian of Yale University; the Secretary of Princeton University; the Necrologist of Hamilton College; the Librarian of Williams College; the Stated Clerks of many of the Presbyteries; several former students who have worked upon the gathered material, and specially to the Rev. Taliesin W. Davies, of the class of 1911, who did much preliminary work in gathering material; the Rev. William S. Jerome, of the class of 1883, who placed his annotated copy of Dr. Beecher's Catalogue at the disposal of the committee; Mr. Harry B. Jacobs, of the Auburn (Jacobs) Seminary Press, and his assistants, whose patience has not failed us and whose work speaks for itself; and many others, unnamed, who have aided us in various ways.

Much the larger part of the work of preparing the material for the printer, and of reading the proofs, has been done by Dr. Hinke, and the other editor wishes here gratefully to recognize the abundant labors of his colleague. It is largely owing to his indefatigable passion for accuracy that the Catalogue can lay claim to accuracy of statement and excellence in mechanical appearance. He has spared neither time nor labor in the task. It is perhaps needless to add, that for both members of the committee it has been a labor of love.

This General Biographical Catalogue of Auburn Theological Seminary, for the first hundred years of its history, is now sent forth with the profound conviction that the record here given is one in which the alumni and friends of the Seminary may rejoice, and for which they may thank God as we enter upon the second century of the history of our beloved Alma Mater.

JOHN Q. ADAMS,
WILLIAM J. HINKE,
Committee appointed by the Faculty.
